Dear Fellow Handelians,

There are many reasons for us to celebrate this year at the London Handel Festival. It is twenty years since Denys Darlow first put on a Handel opera in conjunction with Michael Rosewell and the Royal College of Music. I am delighted that the collaboration is still flourishing and this year we are mounting Riccardo Primo (275th year after its première) with two delightful casts from the Royal College of Music International Opera School.

The opera that Denys chose to launch this special relationship with RCM was the 1712 version of Il pastor fido, Handel's second opera for the London stage. (I was lucky enough to be the continuo player for this production so this year marks my 20th with the Festival) La Nuova Musica launch their world première recording for Harmonia Mundi of this fine opera (this year celebrating its 300th anniversary) on 13 April.

Two years ago we began a cycle of oratorios with libretti by Charles Jennens and this year it is the turn of Messiah. Composed 270 years ago, this very familiar work is rarely heard in its original Dublin form and it is this version, with its many variants, including the gig-like 'Rejoice greatly', that we will present on 24 April.

For the Wigmore programme we focus on the great Italian émigré, Francesco Geminiani, who was born in Lucca 325 years ago and died in Dublin 250 years ago. Two anniversaries in one! The Festival also has some rare jewels, including Hasse's Cajo Fabricio, Ragas from 18th Century India, a visit from the Croatian music school in Varaždin, in the intimate setting of the Conway Hall and of course, the many wonderful young performers in the lunchtime series.

On a personal note, it is the 10th anniversary of me taking over the Musical Directorship from Denys Darlow and I continue to be grateful for Denys' tireless work and inspiration. On becoming Musical Director I decided it was time for a Handel Singing Competition and I am delighted that this has gone from strength to strength and look forward to another thrilling Final.

I hope amongst all this excitement you will have time to sit back and enjoy these musical treats. I very much look forward to seeing you at the London Handel Festival, 2012!

Indian Twilight

Ragas from an era of change: India in the 18th century. Central to this transition was the singer and composer Niyamat Khan (1670-1748), known as Sadarang, whose compositions, encapsulating in a few lines the characteristics of a raga, are still sung today as the structure round which singers weave their improvisations.

Richard I is to marry Costanza, a Spanish princess, but she is shipwrecked near Cyprus. Her rescuer, Isacio, falls for her and plans to keep her and send Richard his daughter Pulcheria instead - notwithstanding that she is already betrothed to Oronte, Prince of Syria. There follows the usual confusion, cross-dressing and conflict that make for a classic Handelian night out. Written for the 1727 Royal Academy season, Riccardo Primo was also a nod to the new king, George II, who fancied himself as another great British military leader.

Talks on Riccardo Primo by James Robert Carson on 28 March and by Katie Hawks on 29 March - Britten Theatre 4-5pm - advance booking required - free entry.

Francesco Geminiani, Mrs. Arne and the Concerto Grosso in England. Tartini described Italian violinist and composer Francesco Geminiani as 'Il Furibondo' ('the wild man'). From his arrival in England in 1714 he, alongside Handel, dominated the musical scene, performing and composing and helping to establish in this country the popularity of the music of his teacher, Arcangelo Corelli, and of the concerto grosso form. He was also an important teacher and one of his most renowned pupils was the soprano, Cecilia Young, for whom Handel wrote several important roles and who later married Thomas Arne.

Handel House Museum and the London Handel Festival

London Handel Festival Opera Project

Each year Handel House Museum takes the opera being produced by the LHF as a stimulus and creates a project around it with students from a London secondary school. This year students will be not only looking at Riccardo Primo but also the subject of Handel's new British citizenship.

The Annual Handel House Museum Concert for Schools with the Handel House Players.

Handel House Museum is delighted to be able to be able to present the Handel House Players to primary schools around London at its Annual Concert for schools. This ideal introduction to baroque music educates and entertains in the beautiful surroundings of St George's Church, Hanover Square.

For more details about either of these projects please contact the Handel House Museum on 020 7399 1953 or email Claire Parker cparker@handelhouse.org
